Searching for Books & Articles

- Identify the main ideas or concepts of your topic.
- Think of single words or short phrases that best describe these ideas.
- Use these as search terms in a "keyword" search.
Examples: medieval, global warming
- Try more than one search using variations of your search terms.

The Call Number is a book's "address" on the shelf, and is a combination of letters and numbers.
Example: E96.5 .S64 2012

Renew Your Books Online!

Click on the My Account tab on the library website.
Log in using your student # and birthdate.

Finding Course Reserves

Go to the Catalogue, select first drop-down menu to choose 'Course Reserves.'
Search by Course Name, Course ID, or Instructor Name.

Reserves are kept at the Circulation Desk:

- Bring the call number (see above) of the item to the Circulation Desk and staff will retrieve it for you.
- Most are 3-hour loans, in-library use only.
- Short Loan Reserves are also kept at the Circulation Desk. These are 2-day loans that can be taken out of the Library.

Looking at Your Search Results

Too few articles?

Try using:

- variations of your search terms
- broader search terms
- a different database

Too many articles?

Narrow your search by:

- using a more specific search term
- adding another search term
- clicking on a subject heading
- selecting a publication type, i.e. academic journals

Articles not relevant?

Try using:

- synonyms, different spellings or related words
- a different database
- the Help or Tips in the database

Finding the “Full Text” of Articles

- Look for a “full text” link, or click on  get it!
 - if the article is available in another database, get it! will link you to it.
 - get it! will also indicate if the article is available in print or microform format in the Library.
- If the full text of an article is not available, it can be requested through Interlibrary Loan.

Saving your articles

Most databases allow you to:

- * Print, save, or email articles
- * Export article links to RefWorks

RefWorks

- Import, store and organize references into your personal RefWorks account.
- Format in-text citations and bibliographies.
- Share your references with other people.
- See the RefWorks Help link for tutorials.

Interlibrary Loan

Need a book or article that is not available at this Library?
Request it online through RACER. (Most ILLs are free!)
See Interlibrary Loan at www.eclibrary.ca

Evaluating Websites

Information from the Internet used for university or college assignments must be critically evaluated for reliability.

- Determine who wrote the information. Are they an expert on the subject? Is the site affiliated with a credible organization? Look for an “About Us” link.
- Was the website created to share information, sell something, or promote a point of view?
- Check the URL—it may indicate the website type: commercial, educational, government, etc.
- Is the content accurate? Are references provided to back it up? Are there spelling or grammar errors?
- Is the information up to date?
